

Overview

Language has some features that require our understanding on the spoken language or the oral one.

One example of the features is connected to how a message is transferred from one person to the other, it depends on how good your language is. We can say someone is happy or not, angry or not by listening his words or by looking at the way he speaks. It should be realized why stress, rhythm, pitch, and intonation are important in any communication to make clearer understanding.
